Important New York City Bills Are Introduced To-Day.

(By Associated Press.)
ALBANY, Jan. 18.—The delay in dis-sing of some of the important legislation that was set down for action this week is attributed to two causes. That of taking no action in the matter of the that Senator Saxton, the leader of the majority, has been ill, and Senator Cantor, of the minority, did not care to press the question. On Thursday of next week the rules will be considered and ator McCarthy, Dame Rumor says that, despite the efforts of the leaders, Senators Coggeshall. Owens and Bradley have refused to go into chucus on the matter and that Senator Reynolds, Republican of Kings, refuses to vote at all on the question.

Senator Coggeshall is abscLnt and Senators Owen and Reynolds refuse to talk on the matter. Senator Bradley says he has not arrived at a decision. Saxton says the rumor is untrue.

Senator Saxton was in his place as President pro tem of the Senate this morning, and announced that the Comon Public Heal... heretofore omitted was Senators Smelzer, Lamy and Coffey. He also announced these changes: Senator Reynolds, Chairman of Insurance, vice Saxton resigned; Senator Pound, Chairman of State Prisons vice Reynolds resigned, and Senator Saxton on Insurance, vice Pound resigned.

tere survived him, and Edgerton L. Winthrop was made executor of the will. Since then Mra. Winthrop, the widow of the testator, has died and the executor has succeeded in relieving the estate of all encumbrances.

By a provision of the will, the widow was given the house at 138 Second avenue, rent free for her life and $20,000 a year. Out of the residue of the estate each child was to receive $5,000 a year during the life of the widow, and on her death $2,000 a year additional.

The executor was also allowed to give each an additional $1,000 a year if he thought best, and was also given the privilege of lendinf each $1,000 a year.

Another clause of the will provided for the dividing of the estate into five equal parts for the children upon the death of the willow. As this clause seemingly conflicted with the other clause of the will, the executor brought an action for a construction of the will and an accounting.

Scheland's saloon is only two doors from the Lee avenue police shitton, yet this year thieves got into his saloon through the cellar and rifled the cash register, and on a second visit got into Mr. Scheland's rooms over the saloon and secured $155 in money and ewelry.

This morning when Mr. Scheland went to open the saloon he found that his dog was missing. He reported the case to Special Deputy Sheriff Winters, to whom he said that thieves had left a note, stating that they would come and get his wife next time.

It is supposed that the dog was spirited away by some one who knew him, which would explain the fact that he went without any frouble. Mr. Scheland declined to discuss the case this morning, and became angry whenever his friends stopped to sympathize with him.

Gardiner had his revolver in his hand at the time and fired two shots without taking aim. The man fell, and the policeman, after finding that one builet had taken effect, sent in a call for an ambulance, and the wounded man was taken to Hellevue Hospital.

The police claim that Casper was a member of what is known as the "Corned Heart Flats" gang, which has caused them a great deal of trouble.

Policemen Farrell and Donnelly were put on the case, and an hour or two after the shooting arrested John E. Stringer, of 339 Avenue C. They claim he is the other man who was with Cesper outside of the saloon when Gardiner arrived. One of the three men who were keeping watch on the outside is said to be John, alias "Kid," Donnelly. He has not yet been arrested.

Jacob Bier, the proprietor of the saloon, said the five men were in his place up to the time of closing. He was compelled to order them out. After locking up he went directly across the street to the thee.

He was suspicious of the men, and as they were standing on the corner he decided to sit at the window and watch them. He did so for some time, but finally became sleepy and went to bed.

He was awakened shortly afterwards by two pistol shots, and ran to the window. He saw the policeman bending over Casper. He made an examination of his saloon, and found that an entrance had been effected by removing one of the tin panels of the door. Tin was used in place of glass, and one of these had been forced in and the lock wrenched off.
